i like to pick my life apart piece by piece is-it would seem

i don't need the ecstasy pills that i got within my dreams

*so tell me
what is wrong with me?*

my conscience or my sub-conscious it would be?

may 23 2025 | 03:20 PM

smoking cigarettes make my hands shake, they shiver. It almost feels as though i can control my hands, slow down the shivering.

without realising, i've dropped my cigarette on the ground. it's almost finished anyways, as i pack my things; ever so dead lays the cigarette.

i cannot let that be, no cigarette bud left behind.

i reach down and ash it beneath my shoe, a habit of mine, as i start walking, i pay close attention to the bud, i don't know why.. yet.

i have this attachment towards certain cigarettes, especially whilst i'm outside, that no cigarette should be left behind.

as my walk is in momentum, there i see it, a resting place for my extinguished bud. i open the green dabba and toss it inside. these are my final goodbyes.

as i continue my walk, the realisation hits me, i'm scared of what the nicotine does to me; the shivering is managable but what concerns my memory? will i even remember this moment?

in such, i look back in search of closure but my distance is no where near where i had left it.

sadness borrows within me, will that cigarette remembers my inhales? my tender yet dry lips? is it sentient enough to see that realisation of mine to lick my lips with my tongue? afterwards, will it remember my wet lips?
confused i let it go. but atleast there is no cigarette bud left behind on the ground.

i went to a show that you forced me to go to week after week, week after week i held onto the note you, so deserved

day after day, day after day my excitement erodes when i finally called you, when i finally told you of it's existence..

i thought that i was dreaming when you said loved me i know these are just words but they mean so much, they mean so much to me

you felt so happy that i got that note & i felt so euphoric it was as if you were petting a cat, petting a cat & i was petting you.

this body means nothing to me

my forearms near my wrists are less than 2 inches thick i feel like a malnourished chick with a leaking yolk sack no nutrient will ever suffice my body's capable size as my digestive track develops plaque.

a weak prey i have stayed; noticed as whose bones will snap easily, one day.

i like that quite often as my recovery shall not be resurrected, i want to decompose, i want to be desecrated.

i would've played natural snow buildings but nine inch nails got to me first :)

when occupiers settle, you are changed, your land is changed too.

when they evict you, your land is changed, your culture is too.

once transformed through exploiting, they ought to become war industrialists, they bomb you, let you suffocate under the rubble, no matter who.

i wish, i yearn, i hope that it comes to your mind, palestinians are people too.

they have been starved, traumatized, tortured far too often; where their genes say "that's going down the generations, not one, not two but forever, inherited by your children too."

stop. don't lose hope, fuck you if you do because palestine will be free no matter opposes who.
